

ᑕᐱᐸᑭᑖᑦᑎᑦᑕ
QAUJIGIARTIIT

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Executive Director

Qaujigiartiit Health Research Centre, an Inuit-led non-profit based in Iqaluit, is seeking a visionary Executive Director & CEO to lead the organization into its next chapter. Founded on Inuit Qaujimajatuqangit and committed to community wellness and self-determination, Qaujigiartiit is a leading research, education, and innovation centre that is also contributing to community-built infrastructure grounded in Inuit knowledge and values.

As Executive Director, you will oversee operations, finances, human resources, infrastructure, and fundraising, and serve as CEO of our affiliated development corporation. Working closely with the Board and Scientific Director, you will ensure that strategic and community priorities guide all aspects of our work.

Ideal candidates bring strong leadership and management experience in a non-profit or health-related setting, deep respect for Inuit culture, and a commitment to community-led initiatives.

Location: Iqaluit, Nunavut

Salary: $120,000–$160,000 plus housing and northern allowances (total compensation up to $182,500). Additional benefits include a comprehensive health, dental, and wellness supports package, flex-time options, paid professional development, a supportive and family-friendly workplace, and others.

Closing Date: open until filled.

To learn more or apply, visit: www.qaujigiartiit.ca

Inquiries can be sent to gwen.healeyakearok@qhrc.ca

Program Evaluator and Data Analyst

Location: Iqaluit, Nunavut

Qaujigiartiit Health Research Centre is hiring a Program Evaluator and Data Analyst to support community health research and program evaluation across Nunavut. The successful candidate will work with our team to collect, analyze, and summarize data, support proposal development, and contribute to the evaluation of local health and wellness programs.

Qualifications include:

- Experience in data analysis, project coordination, or research
- Excellent writing, organizational, and analytical skills
- Knowledge of Nunavut's community contexts and health systems
- Proficiency with MS Excel and Word
- Lived in Nunavut for at least 3 years
- Inuktitut an asset. Beneficiaries and long-term Nunavummiut will be prioritized
- A criminal record check will be required

Position is based in Iqaluit and may require travel.

To apply, send a resume and 1-page cover letter to:

Dr. Gwen Healey Akearok

Email: gwen.healeyakearok@qhrc.ca

Inunnguiniq Coordinator

Location: Iqaluit, Nunavut

Qaujigiartiit Health Research Centre is hiring an Inunnguiniq Coordinator to support the delivery of culturally grounded community programs across Nunavut. Inunnguiniq means “the process of making capable human beings” and is a central concept in Inuit ways of teaching and raising children.

The Inunnguiniq Coordinator will work with Elders, youth, and families to coordinate workshops, land-based programming, and community wellness initiatives grounded in Inuit knowledge. The role includes travel within Nunavut, coordination of training, and working closely with project teams and community partners.

Qualifications include:

- Strong knowledge of Inuit culture and values
- Experience working with community-based programs
- Excellent communication and organizational skills
- Must have lived in Nunavut for at least 3 years
- Inuktitut is a strong asset
- A criminal record check will be required

Priority will be given to Nunavut Inuit and long-term Nunavummiut.

To apply, send a resume and 1-page cover letter to:

Dr. Gwen Healey Akearok

Email: gwen.healeyakearok@qhrc.ca