Nunatsiaq News is looking for Freelancers

Do you know the stories your community needs to tell? Nunatsiaq News is expanding its network of freelance writers, reporters, photographers, and storytellers across the North.

We're looking for community voices interested in covering local news, culture, language, arts, sports, environment, and issues that matter to your community.

Whether you're an experienced journalist or a passionate storyteller with strong community knowledge, we want to hear from you.

Inuktitut, Inuinnaqtun, and French speakers are encouraged to apply.

Send a brief introduction, your community/region, and samples of your work to randib@nunatsiaq.com.
